

About Writers

By Eydie McDaniel

For 25 years a strong urge to write has kept your Windsor Gardens Writers Group going. Until 2009 the Writer's Group filled the pages of our beloved Windsor World. . Groups come and go but the Writers Group is the longest running group here at Windsor Gardens. We come when the snow blows and banks high. We come through the cold, the heat, or the rain. We come with a variety of physical changes and as expressed by member Ruth Delhay we make the best of what we have left. Any Monday the building doors are unlocked some of us are there. As we read our work we laugh, feel inspired, and experience irony and new points of view. We play with the puzzles we have made from the requested topics. And sometimes we are simply puzzled by the requested topics.

Although we are not a support group, what we write shows one another who we are. I don't know for everyone else but I think we write from our strength and we find our strength as we write. Whatever we create, we know we will be heard. Respect may come in diplomatic silence, heartfelt chuckles, or personal comments as we chat after wards. If you are a Windsor Gardens residents with an urge to write, we welcome you. Something unpredictable always makes it's worth attending. We gather in the Aspen room at 9:00 AM every Monday and always discover again that "Life Is Good".
