

What a Wonderful World We Live In.

05-04-2015 by Harry Zirkelbach

Of course, you all know that already. I'd be gilding the lily to speak directly to a topic you each know as well as any in the Writers group, or in Windsor Gardens.
For our family, it is always the small things that remind us.

a first step of anything;

a poem;

any smile;

a clean mirror;

the husband's hand;

kindness;

candlelight;

a ball as toy;

wg-wg;

a thank you;

acceptance of duty with a smile;

the ring of a phone;

the Magna Carta

flowing mane on a horse;

welcome mat, anywhere;

freedom;

lilac fragrance in spring;

its size, when the moon rises;

personal mail;

that good night's sleep;

a tear, of joy, or pain;

a whiff of smoke;

the discarded robin egg in spring;

red;

taps at Arlington;

bunny in the garden;

the prism in a rain drop;

that world inside a bud of a tree;

the fingernail clipping;

the promise of eternity;

a spring rain,

any one of a kind;

the siren of an ambulance,;

the "V" of migrating birds;

Contracts, accepted thru a handshake;

and finally , and anti-climax ...

You.
