Many occupations are celebrated by the clothing their individuals wear as identification in the performance of duties. Not to slight others, but those immediately recognizable are, military, police/fire, medical and judicial. Outside their professional duty, their garb will tend to be is pedestrian, another Joe or Jane Doe. There was a time I would have included clergy, especially Catholic Priests and Nuns; the men in total black, reverse white collar; the women in black with white bib and wimple; today fewer carry that Cross.

In uniform, all are seen as honorable, respected, beyond the humdrum of daily chores and existence.
Especially as they are elevated in responsibilities.

Well, I can make an exception, There are the small town Police Chief, Fire Marshall, now regularly wearing the stars and braid of the high Pentagon officers. These men and women, wearing Multiple Stars, Embroidered Golden Braid (again to excess) if seen on Colbert would be seen to be mocking the military and all authority in uniform, but are taken seriously, proudly by those in the boondocks.

Looking for representative Senior Clothing, casual, come to WG-WG meetings
Monday 09:00, Aspen Room, relax and join in the readings.

A tie on any male would be seen out of place, and good-looking women hats are in repose,
at least until our haute coulter style leader
Loweta Kimball returns , bring fashion and style to what is read.

There something regal when the well groomed read a simple story with dignity.
At that I have been the outstanding failure.
