

My Top 10 to Fight Boredom

By Jeanne Lee

1. Just before the shut down here at WG I shot across the street and got 12 cozy paperback books that have no educational value but a lot of relaxation. I've had to slow down my reading because I'm running down to the last 3! May have to work out a neighborhood book exchange because I am a page turner not a Nook person. Put books in a bag and walk back 6 feet so we can exchange.
2. I have made and given away over 100 face masks.
3. Finished putting the binding on my quilt Saturday night and sleep tested it that night. ZZZZZZ
4. Halfway through making a new quilt top. Quite a long way to go to get it finished ... but I do have the time!
5. Cooking and baking and sharing it with my neighbors so I don't eat it all myself. Wish I was close enough to bring you a couple of plates. I have many leftovers in the frig and freezer.
6. Sleeping 7 to 8 1/2 hours a night (and sometimes more.)
7. Helping care for my sweet friend Nancy (97-1/2 years young). She is doing well under the circumstances.
8. Working jigsaw puzzles online.
9. Walking the mile around the circle on the days when weather permits (wearing my mask).
10. Enjoying Pastor Dick's daily devotional. Praising God for all that I have and for good health!
