

A True Sentence

A true sentence A true sentence indeed!! That's this weeks Writers Group challenge.

Do you know how few people speak in complete sentences let alone a "true sentence."

We have become a nation of grunts and groans, which is especially noticeable if you are around young people.

How can I, with my limited experiences and equally limited vocabulary compose a true sentence.. One with discriptive adjectives that makes the reader feel in tune with the author.

My husband calls and asks, "What are you doing?" I answer, "Nothing" but I can't help wondering his reaction if I had answered in a true sentence.

"I'm allowing my mind to fanaticize, as I watch the billowy clouds slowly drift across the horizon."

The playful sunbeam danced through my newly washed window, mischievously spotlighting the dust on my coffee table; as if to challenge my housekeeping skills.
