

The Time Has Come

By Marilyn Reeves

Ah, here you are at last!
Too much time has passed
Since last we met.
We must resolve this conflict
That has driven us apart
And finally put it all to rest.
Right here. Right now.

Sometimes when harsh words are spoken
Or the meaning of intent mistaken
Without even knowing how
One is left with misinterpretation
And trust is broken.
Perhaps beyond repair.

Let's face this problem one on one.
Please look into my eyes and tell me now
What it is I might have said or done
To set you spinning round and round
And left me stranded in mid-air.

I have always loved you, my dear friend.
My only wish is that we mend
This rift that's come between us.
Please, just tell me how.

Let's finally bring this quarrel to an end.
The time has come to make amends
So I can hold you in my arms again.
Right here. Right now.