

Challenging Don Quixote
by Natalie Lawson

If there ever was a complexity
'Tis in our inner emotions
Whether it's in our sincerity
Or hidden deep within our elusions.

Throwing everything out in the open
Feeling free for new beginnings
Close your eyes and count to ten
Experience the wondrous lightings.

My heart went out to Elvis Presley
I was wrapped in a dream like globe
In a splendor magnificence and rather stately
Although it escalated me to a phonetic-phobe.

Many years I enjoyed the music
His wondrous voice surrounding me
Can't deny, a mysterious mystic
With emotions divine, glory be!

Being in the middle of impractical feelings
Ridiculously chivalrous and romantic
Flying sanctimoniously and whistlings
Claiming ingenuity and truly sophistic.

Don Quixote I raise my hand and challenge you
Romance is embedded within my soul
I'll state a fact to prove my case true
My internal being easily reaches my goal!
