

Private Property

By Suzy Hopkins

They can be hilarious, melancholy, nonsense or even terrifying. They can be the same or completely different. They can be long or short, dissipating in a flash. The one thing I know for sure is they are, unless and until I share them with someone, the only possession that is solely mine – my dreams.