

What Am I?

By Suzy Hopkins

I taste nectar with receptors on my feet.

I smell with my antennae.

My skeleton is outside my body.

I attach my eggs to leaves with special glue.

I have blood in my wings which are made up of millions of tiny scales.

Sometimes I eat plants.

I can't hear but I feel vibrations.

I breathe through openings on my abdomen.

My family members are every color in the rainbow.

These are not alternative facts.

What am I?

A butterfly.
