

The Detrimental Reconfiguring of Schools by Liz Gibbons

I want to preface what I write so you know my thought on disease which is different from what the medical profession and health departments promote. Thankfully this so-called pandemic has not lived up to its predictions. Much fear has been generated because we are not knowledgeable about the role of viruses and bacteria. Ever since Pasteur proposed the germ theory many scientists have said it is incorrect, and it is the environment or terrain in a person that is the factor that determines health. So allopathic medicine is based on a faulty premise, that germs cause disease, and their tactic is to fight what they consider as invaders. Today many researchers and physicians state that diseases are caused by our body being too acidic and/or by toxins. Emotions, such as fear, can also be a causative factor as they can make the body acidic. To keep us alive and functioning our body attempts to restore balance in our body by natural detoxification processes which produce symptoms such as a runny nose that doctors call a disease, in this case a cold. To enable us to survive certain cells are able to change form and function (pleomorph) and produce bacteria and viruses to clean up the diseased and dead tissue. Their presence as the clean-up crew has been mistaken as the cause.

I am concerned about what is being done in our schools. I wish I had a magic wand to eliminate the craziness surrounding the opening of school and all the procedures being set in place. Denver Public schools are scheduled to open on either August 17 or August 24. I shudder at what is being instilled in a whole generation of children. Children will be required to wear a mask on school buses and in the classroom even though many health professionals say masks do not protect. Each child's temperature will be taken upon arrival at school, and if it is 100.0 or above the child will not be allowed to enter. There will be no assemblies, no cafeteria. Children will eat breakfast and lunch in their classroom. There will be no communal sharing of supplies. Frequent hand washing will be required. I wonder how teachers will be able to teach all day wearing a mask and how much that will hinder the students grasping what the teacher is saying. Seeing facial expression is a big part of understanding the nuances of conversation. In some school districts in other states the desks will have plastic shields around them.

Years ago when I attended public schools we learned, had recess, made lasting friendships, joked around, had fun, participated in sports and received loving support from teachers. There was much interaction with others. That will no longer be a part of school life. Children will now be brought up to accept fierce control of activities as normal. Being apart from others is normal. They will fear that other kids can give them a disease. Social distancing will hamper interaction with other kids and their teacher. And they are likely to carry these perceptions through their entire life.

Whatever is supposedly going around that is claimed to be caused by covid-19, children are pretty immune from it, and the risk of death in children is very minuscule. Yes, even one covid childhood death is tragic, but if a child is relatively healthy there is virtually no risk. So are all these changes necessary? No. This is taking complete control of children's lives. This is abusive.
